

This guitar pickup cable from Remington Industries is ideal for musical hobbyists and professional guitarists alike. The two or four stranded conductors are individually insulated in color-coded PVC (see colors below), and surrounding these conductors is a foil shield with a drain wire. Additionally, the whole cable is covered with a black PVC jacket that protects the inner components from abrasion and any chemicals.

Guitar pickup cable is commonly used for coil splitting double-coil pickups (humbuckers) and tapping single coil pickups. It is also useful for lengthy runs between components where minimal electromagnetic interference is desired. Remington Industries offers 2-conductor and 4-conductor guitar pickup wires in several lengths to best suit your project.
