

Stranded or Solid THHN Hook Up Wire from Remington Industries is used primarily in conduit and raceway applications for branch circuits, services, and feeders in commercial and industrial designs as specified in the National Electrical Code 2. The single or multi conductor wire is made from bare copper that offers high quality performance for most electrical applications, and the PVC insulation with a nylon jacket offers heavy-duty protection against abrasion, chemicals, oils, and solvents. This wire is suitable for dry locations in temperatures under 90°C (194°F), or for wet and oil/coolant applications where temperatures are under 75°C (167°F). It conforms to UL certifications for 600-volt conductors. This hook up wire is available in two wire gauges (12 & 14 AWG). It is also available in several colors (see below) to allow for easy circuit identification, as well as numerous spool sizes (see below) for your convenience.
